Our Team

Partners

All of Stoa's Partners have previous experience in real estate during the early days and founding of DSLD Homes. DSLD began business in 2008, selling 51 houses. Today, DSLD has grown to be one of the 30 largest home builders in the nation, on pace to sell 3,800 houses in 2021. Stoa was founded based on the DSLD model, taking things that worked well in the single-family sector and transitioning them to the multi-family sector: an even-flow cadence of construction, a commitment to our trade partners, and a philosophy of continuous improvement.

Competitive Advantage

Construction

Stoa Group | March 2021

At Stoa we focus on processes to improve efficiency throughout all phases of the development, construction, and property management operations. For construction operations, we have adopted the even-flow model we used at DSLD Homes, and reformatted it for multi-family construction. This method is based on fixed durations with enough slack to help minimize schedule variation, as variation is the enemy of both quality and efficiency. The carefully interconnected relationships between activities allow us to improve the utilization of resources and provide predictability for our supply chain partners, trade partners, construction management team, and lease up team. This even-flow strategy also allows us to better predict construction starts, our vendor's work pipeline for resource optimization, and unit delivery to the leasing team. Through this strategy we maximize the relationships with our vendors, investor value, and ultimately our residents with regards to timely unit delivery and product consistency.

In order to execute our plan, we utilize Procore, which is a fully integrated construction management solution that allows us to provide a single platform for our team to schedule our trades, host and view construction documents, manage project accounting, perform quality control inspections, and maintain our safety program. It is through utilizing modern paperless construction management techniques that we maximize productivity and minimize waste while allowing for complete transparency to our managers and trade partners to get the job done on time and on budget.
